“ Aris:

I've probably composed at least a dozen separate writings about Aris in my mind tonight, but I will keep most of them between he and I as kinsmen. I lay awake the last few nights after hearing that you were called home; (what a reception of love that you've had, for that I am absolutely certain of) I lay here mostly listening to your laugh, and seeing you smile. As I drop a tear or two writing this, I am filled with joy remembering that laugh, and thinking of your kindness, wit and your humor at various ages. Thank you for always sharing with me (your cousin) those things that are worth the most. For those that knew you, what a warm heart, a roaring laugh, a gentleman. Yesterday, and a good portion of the evening I spent with your parents and brother; my own body was...foreign to me, hurt and spent...perfect timing...long, boring story and like usual my attempt at comforting them was turned into them comforting me, and you guessed it, my concerns were looked into, and I was heard out, and I was loved on; you have always been more like a (Big Lil Bro.) to me... never complaining to share your time with your dad, mom and brother with me from day 1, the calm...I can see you watching as a young boy as your mom helped me with my homework (guess I'll be waiting on one more joke and laugh from you, always making me check facts, then that laugh)...Aris as I hobbled around there tonight you were definitely felt... everywhere. Please hug Our family there with you for me, and I promise to do the same here, I'll even try hard with your brother. Just like that first alleyoop in the Neighborhood at the park remember; I throw the rock up, as you slam it home...save a spot for me at the table, we still have so many things to talk, joke and laugh about one day.

Jacob Sr.

I pause for now with a scripture.

“ It is always hard when you lose someone very special. Aris was that guy. He always had a smile, a good sense of humor and above all, a very kind and respectful heart. He truly will be missed by all who knew him. Yvette/Ed and son, know that we are thinking of you during this difficult time. Please reach out to us, if you need to talk as we have been in your shoes. We know nothing we can say or do will take the pain away, but know that you are loved and we will keep you in our prayers.

“ I am so very saddened and heartbroken to hear about the passing of your son. I never had the pleasure to meet Aris, but from the comments that I have read about him he was amazing and a bright light in this world.

May your beautiful memories sustain and bring comfort to you during this difficult time. Please accept my deepest sympathies. My prayers are with you during this time. May your memories of Aris and the love of your family surround you and give you strength and peace in the days ahead.

“ Last week I lost someone rare, someone with a great sense of humor and who was smarter than he wanted let on. Last week the world lost someone who was going to do (and had already done) big things. I will miss Aris' laugh, his wisdom, and his humility. I grew professionally from his advice and perspective in my life. I lost a true friend. I already miss you Aris.

“ I will truly miss Aris. My coworker and friend. I will miss our morning conversations. You made me smile and laugh. When you walked into our office you brought sunshine to the room. When I was having a bad day, you would calm me with your positive attitude and funny laughter. Aris would always say, it's closer to Friday, relax, and the weekend is almost here and it was only Monday. I will always remember Aris and honored to have known such a special person. My prayers go out to his family and Kelsey.

“ Aris' parents, family, his lovely Kelsey, and friends:

Precious, gentle, wise beyond his years, and filled with 6'8" (my guess) wide eyed, smart-aleckness. I have been honored to be a mentor to Aris at CU and soon became a friend. Even in the midst of a quandary, his calming presence never wavered.

I love you, Aris. You are not gone, you are simply Closer. You touch me with your unceasing Goodness, Light, and Love. Come dry these tears with your man-child laughter. You are no longer where you used to be - you are now wherever we are.

“ Dear Aris' family and friends,
I am so saddened by Aris' passing. I admired his pursuit of the degree. I am remembering, fondly, treasuring the words he shared with the audience at the hooding ceremony, of strength and commitment to success of those around him and his goals as a black man and for social justice. That phrase pales when I imagine what Aris would have done. He aspired to so much.
I had the honor and pleasure of working with him on just a couple of the Colorado Mountain College co-projects. He was so welcomed by that cohort. I will miss him.

“ He was an amazing human being. Always willing to help others, regardless of how much he had going on. He was humble and funny. Aris was proud of the work he did on campus and we are just going to miss him. We will miss him.

“ We are heart broken that Aris has been called home so soon. We are sending our deepest condolences to all the family. Aris showed a beautiful side of himself to me one day at our happy hour after work, as we shared our loss, me of my daughter who was 20 years old and him of his grandmother. We spoke about the movie Coco and how it moved us to tears and he shared he did not watch movies with emotional scenes as they brought back that memory of how he felt that day. May God bring comfort and healing to his Mother and whole family.

“ I am so saddened to hear this news. I was in the doctoral program with Aris and we worked on many group projects together. Aris was intelligent and so very passionate. He inspired me. Whether it was working on a poster, writing a paper together, or meeting up for a snack, Aris always had a positive attitude and a smile (the best smile). I will miss you Aris.

“ Aris was such a kind hearted and wonderful young man. He was our graduate assistant at Regis when we first met him. He always had a smile on his face and was just positive. The students respected and looked up to him. He had great energy and helped us organize our staff retreat to the comic book store, Mile High Comics, which he took so much joy in putting it on. It was by far the students' favorite activity of the year.

We know that Aris' mom was one of his heroes because he talked about her all the time and truly looked up to her. Everything he did, he wanted to make his mom proud and he just had tremendous love for her. We are forever grateful for the time that we were able to spend with Aris. We will never forget him and his kind soul.

We send our condolences to the Molock family. Our thoughts and prayers are with you.
