“ Ernest and I worked together at the Bureau of Reclamation for many years. We had nearly daily conversations then, and we continued our conversations throughout his nearly 30 years of retirement. As his contemporaries passed on, we would occasionally talk about Saint Peter at the Golden Gate. We agreed that when St. Peter saw Ernest coming he would throw the gates wide open and wave Ernest right through. I asked Ernest many times to put in a good word for me - he never fully committed to that plan. Today, I am sure that Ernest has a foot wedged in the Golden Gate, leaving just enough room for me to slip through. I will miss our conversations and the company of a true friend.

I also will miss the conversations between John and Mr White! They were full of laughter and joy and no one will ever be able to call me "Whatshername" I will miss Mr White also-he was a good man with a good woman by his side! Sandy Steighner
